CLOUDBURST PREVAILS. CONDITION OF CAMERON

Deluge of Water Descends on Kentucky Town.

DEVASTATION DREADFUL. MOST ALL UNDER WATER.

Creek Converted Into Raging Torrent and Overflowing Sweeps Dwelling Away, Causing Fatalities and Injuries and Ruining Crops.

Louisville, June 8.—A cloudburst occurred at Gradyville, Ky., early Saturday morning. At 9 o'clock three bodies had been recovered and twenty-one other persons were missing. A partial list of the dead and missing at that time was given as follows:

Strong Hill, wife and two children. John Moore.

Mrs. Austin Wilmore and Miss Wilmore.

Dr. L. C. Nell and family. Dr. Nell was a former state senator.

H. Moss and family of five.

The cloudburst turned Big creek into a torrent, which quickly overflowed its banks and poured a great volume of water down upon Gradyville.

Nearly every house in the place was reported as washed away, and those persons who met death were either drowned or crushed to death in their houses as they were torn from their foundations. Every stream in the vicinity is out of its banks. The cloudburst did enormous damage, aside from loss of life, all bridges in this vicinity being washed away and thousands of acres of corn ruined. Gradyville has a population of about 150 and is eight miles from a railroad.

Did Great Damage.

Lexington, Ky., June 8.—A cloudburst over central and eastern Kentucky, did great damage, destroying fences, bridges and other property. The lowlands along the rivers and creeks are reported inundated. Farmers fear great loss, as they made no precautions against a flood at this time.

STILL ON RACK.

Orchard Relates More in Regard to His Operations.

Boise, Ida., June 8.—Before court adjourned Friday Orchard had been questioned by the defense concerning his life narrative down to the early part of 1904, when witness had gone from Denver to Ouray, Colo., with Charles H. Moyer, then as now president of the Western Federation of Miners. Moyer had been afraid of an attack from "things," of the mine owners and had taken Orchard along as a body guard.

Orchard, said Saturday when court opened that he had not become acquainted with Pettibone until 1904, in the early part of the year. He roomed over Pettibone's store for a while. Attorney Richardson went into attempts made upon the life of Governor Peabody. He wanted to know why Orchard had gone to Cripple Creek to get Steve Adams to help him assassinate the governor.

"Was it because he was a Federation man," he asked.

"No," replied Orchard, "it was because I wanted a partner."

"Did you know Adams very well?"

"Not so very well."

Orchard constantly corrected Richardson as to inferences he would draw from his answers and as to the attorney's recollection of his direct testimony.

ANOTHER JUMP.

Cotton Advanced at a Rapid Rate on New York Exchange.

New York, June 8.—The price of cotton for delivery in July made another upward jump on the opening of the New York Cotton Exchange Saturday and within half an hour advanced $1.50 per bale. This placed the price for July option at $3.75 per bale higher than the low price of Friday morning. Trading was very active and excited.

Little Over Fifty Per Cent.

Montgomery, Ala., June 8.—President Seymour of the Alabama division of the Cotton Growers' association gives out a statement in which he shows the condition of cotton at this time as not much above 50 per cent. Stands are poor and badly in grass. Only the best of weather from now on can assure anything like a crop.

Reached Thirteen Cents.

New Orleans, June 8.—For the first time in nearly four years cotton futures reached 13 cents per pound on the New Orleans Cotton Exchange Friday. The July option touched this figure mainly on a report that English syndicate plans to buy 1000,000 bales of July.

Unusual Rise Continues.

New Orleans, June 8.—July cotton continued its unusual rise Saturday, option being quoted at 13.12 soon after the opening. Price of October came within 2 points of 12 1-2 cents per pound and then receded.

James Corrigan, injured in a Santa Fe wreck near Beaumont, died. He had both legs cut off. Pat Wallace was the other victim.

That Louisiana Parish Is In a Sorry Plight.

NINETY PER CENT OF THE COTTON FIELDS HAVE BEEN SUBMERGED FROM ONE TO FIVE FEET AND RIVERS ARE RUNNING MILES WIDE.

New Orleans, June 8.—The first definite news from the flooded parish of Cameron, in the southwest corner of Louisiana, arrived Friday night. The inhabitants are safe, the dispatches say, but so deep are the floods that the sheriff is travelling in a gasoline launch and skiff over what were fertile cotton fields a few days ago, in an effort to summon the July grand jury.

Nearly the entire parish, which contains 1,500 square miles and about 3,000 inhabitants, has been under water. Ninety percent of the cotton in the fields has been submerged from one to five feet deep. Hundreds have been driven from their homes. A few high ridges standing above the water contain thousands of cattle which will die of starvation unless the floods subside quickly. In the southern and eastern parts of the parish farmers have abandoned their places for the year, and will make a temporary living elsewhere. Rivers which caused the flood are running miles wide and make the outlook serious.

ROUGHLY TREATED.

Lawyer Is Taken From Vehicle and Badly Beaten.

Little Rock, June 8.—Deputy Prosecuting Attorney L. A. Britton of Lonoke county was set upon by four armed men a mile and a half from Hamson's schoolhouse in Lonoke county, pulled from the buggy in which he was riding and forced to enter the woods with his captors, where he was stripped and given a severe lashing with a heavy strap. Hamson's schoolhouse is about twenty-five miles from Little Rock.

Mr. Britton and J. W. Gates were discussing at England the case of a man named Jordan, charged with Gates were discussing at England the "bootlegging," in which Gates appears for the defendant, whom Britton is prosecuting. Jordan was to have been tried Friday at Hamson's schoolhouse, eight miles from England, and Gates and Britton decided to drive out together.

A mile and a half from the schoolhouse four masked men issued from the woods at the side of the road and, leveling pistols at the occupants of the carriage, ordered them to halt. They told Gates to get away, as they only wanted Britton.

Britton was taken into the woods, bound to a tree, stripped and beaten unmercifully. The ropes were then untied, and after warning Britton not to follow them, the men disappeared. Britton made his way to England. A doctor was summoned and his wounds were dressed. His condition is not considered serious.

TRUST PROSECUTIONS.

Notable Conference on the Subject Held at the White House.

Washington, June 8.—A notable conference on the subject of trust prosecutions was held at the white house Friday night. Those who participated were President Roosevelt, Secretary Root, Secretary Cortelyou, Secretary Garfield, Attorney General Bonaparte, Interstate Commerce Commissioner Knapp and Lane and Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, special counsel for the government. The Harriman case and the cases of the coal carrying roads were discussed for three hours.

Following the general conference Attorney General Bonaparte remained with the president to discuss the so-called "harvester trust." It is thought that prosecution of that organization will be referred to the attorney general.

JOHN COYNE PENNLESS.

Carried News of Dewey's Victory to American Consul at Hongkong.

Chicago, June 8.—John Coyne, who was commissioned by Admiral Dewey to carry his message of victory over the Spanish fleet in the bay of Cavite, May 1, 1898, to the United States consul at Hongkong, hobbled into a police station and asked for lodgings. While in Washington he was robbed of his railroad tickets to St. Paul and more than $200. According to his story, he traveled to Chicago free, being passed from one conductor to another along the line. He lives at St. Paul. Coyne told of having entered the regular army in 1877 and of seeing service on the western plains. His right leg was paralyzed from having been shot by an Indian and two ugly bullet scars mark his face. He was shot six times while fighting in the west.

SOCIAL and Club Matters

Mrs. M. W. Sims is receiving numerous congratulations over the success of the party last Thursday afternoon which was characterized by many unique features. For this occasion, which was to celebrate the coming together, for the first time, of the recently organized Browning Club, she sent out the following invitation to the fifteen ladies who constitute the membership:

"In my salon, from five till eight, (Provided that the skies are bright) On Thursday next, will come and sit, In close communion sage with wit, The members of the Browning Club, The latest literary hub; And there on a rare Bohemian lunch In sweet contentment we will munch."

This was the signal for the clever pens of the Brownings to dance to rhyme, for it was understood that the R. S. V. P.'s were to be in verse. After the ladies were all assembled in the drawing room, which was beautifully decorated in cape jasmines and magnolias, these responses were all read. Mrs. McKenzie's was pronounced the wittiest and she was presented with the prize, a dainty bit of hand painted china. After this, led by the hostess, the guests wondered out among the fragrant roses, where rugs, cushions and garden chairs formed a pretty setting for the dainty summer frocks and where the modulation of pleasant chatter and humor gay as firefly's light, with the songs of the mocking birds from the low drooping boughs, mixed mellifluous. A number of questions about the life and productions of Browning were propounded. Mrs. Robert Webb and Mrs. Brandon, having proven best informed, won the prize and Mrs. Webb received a beautiful copy of the poems of Mrs. Browning whose dreams and thoughts included her illustrious husband, as the vine tastes of its own grape.

Great excitement prevailed when the hostess announced that she who exalted her favorite poet most in verse should wear the wreath. From the poems, "round and perfect as a star" that fell trippingly from their tongues, lauding the immortal bard from Shakespeare to our own golden tongued Judd Mortimer Lewis, one would have declared that all these fair dames had been born and bred in the golden clime of poesy. The verses were laughter provoking, soul moving, "steering from grave to gay, from lively to serene." All were clever, but Mrs. Haswell's sublime tribute to John Milton was pronounced the best and amidst prolonged applause Mrs. Brandon brought forth the laurel wreath and placing it upon the victor's fair brow, proclaimed her Poet

Laureate of the Browning club:

"In the days of the Olympic games when deeds of chivalry were made manifest, and the richest gems of poetry were read before admiring throngs, the brow of the most renowned hero and author was crowned with the laurel wreath. All down the ages this custom has come to us, and today in the absence of the laurel—

Our brow so pure and fair,

I place these persimmon twigs so rare, Should the branches some fruit contain, To eat it might spoil your lips and fame. I crown you Poet Laureate of this wonderful hub,

Which I christen now the Browning Club."

Just then Miss Tabor, who assisted Mrs. Sims in this unique entertainment, sounded the musical chimes and the ladies passed into the dining room. Here it seemed that from "Dis's wagon Proserpina must have let fall all her flowers." The mantel and cabinets were banked with California yellow daisies. Against the Oriental hangings tall vases of golden glow dahlias showed up most effectively.

But the chief attraction was the table. In the center was a huge green and gold Lemoes punch bowl, in which temptingly appeared the refreshing beverage. Around this bowl were platters of devilled eggs garnished with yellow nasturtiums, of delicious sandwiches, of nasturtium salad and of Welsh rarebit. As the ladies were thus regaled, spontaneous wit flowed freely, and the shuttle of brilliant repartee was tossed back and forth until the closing hour of day was mantled over with sober gray.

Thus the Browning Club has been brilliantly inaugurated.

The following ladies compose the list of members:

Mesdames Sims, Brandon, Hines, McAnnie, Hanway, Webb Howell, Buchanan, W. S. Howell, Willis, Mattie D. Willis, Robert Webb, McQueen, Law, Mooring, Haswell, McInnis, M. W. Sims Jr.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. George Brandon on next Thursday. **

The eighth birthday of little Miss Mary Oliver Roberts was celebrated with a lawn party at the home of her parents on Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6. About fifty girls and boys were present and enjoyed games on the lawn and dainty refreshments of cream and cake. A Teddy Bear contest afforded a great deal of amusement. The prize was awarded to Miss Kathleen McMichael and the "consolation" to Master Dunlap Johnson.

A farewell dance complimentary to Miss Florence Herndon was given by members of the Elks' Club at their hall on Monday evening. About twenty couples were present, music was supplied by a Mexican orchestra and refreshments

TEXAS CENTRAL LAUDED.

Majority of Railroad Commission Congratulates Road.

Austin, June 8.—The railroad commission issued an order approving the application of the Texas Central railroad for a rate of $1.50 for lower and $1 for upper sleeping car berth. This road, through its vice president and general manager, Charles Hamilton, advised the commission that it is to operate its own sleeping cars. The application covers the operation of sleeping cars from Waco to Rotan, 268 miles.

Accompanying the order is the resolution adopted by the majority of the commission, Commissioner Storey dissenting, in which the commission congratulates the Texas Central on the fine showing it has made in the operation of its line; also that this road has refused to join in with other roads of the state in getting an injunction to restrain the commission from putting into effect its order reducing sleeping car rates in Texas 20 per cent. The railroad commission points with pride to the successful management of the company, and believes it to be its duty to call the attention of the public to this matter.

WHY SHE REFUSED HIM

By Tom Masson

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

He reached forward, and took her hand in his. For a moment—it seemed to him only an instant of time, and it was just long enough to convey his own meaning—she allowed it to remain. Then she withdrew it.

He was a wise young man. If he had attempted to pursue even this infinitesimal advantage, and to reach onward again, doubtless he would have been rebuked in that queenly manner which upon occasion she could so easily command.

And so he was content to wait, and change the subject.

It is proper to state, however, that his new subject was more in line with his real train of thought than the old. They had, when he made his advance, been talking on the commonplace topic of the latest historical novel.

Now he turned slowly, and looked squarely in the eye.

"I'm going to marry you!" he said.

"Are you indeed? When did you make up your mind to that?"

"Oh, some time ago. I mean it, you know."

"And lose a million?"

He turned again, abruptly.

"How did you know anything about that?" he asked.

"Your father told me."

"When?"

"Oh, some time ago. He called."

"Why, you must have known them!"

"That you wanted to marry me? No, I didn't. All I knew was that you had spoken to your father about it. You know you might have changed your mind—afterward."

He smiled grimly.

"What you mean," he said, "is this: that I thought it best to consult the governor first, and find out where I stood with him, before I found out where I stood with you."

"Yes."

He got up and took a turn around the room.

"Well, that wasn't exactly it," he continued. "You see, if I had had any doubt about marrying you, I wouldn't have done that—I would have gone for you first, and let the rest go. I meant business, and I thought it ought to be done right. Besides, I said to myself: If the old man turns me down, then my conscience is clear."

She apparently unheeded the last part of his remark.

"May I ask," she said, "what made you so sure of me?"

"I wasn't. But I was sure of myself. I knew the girl I wanted. That is everything in love."

"You seem to have gotten very wise all of a sudden."

He grasped the top of the tarnished gilt chair with both hands, and leaned against it hard, as he looked into her eyes.

"I've knocked around some," he said. "Since I've left college, I've run with the Newport crowd and the high people in town. I've had a lot of girls thrown my way, but I wouldn't give a white chip for the whole gang. I've seen them at their best and worst. They're all right—some of them. It's the life I don't fancy. I don't care for the pace."

It was her turn to smile.

"But there's nothing about me," she said, "that ought to specially recommend itself to you. Why, I even have to earn my own living."

"But your grandmother didn't, did she?"

"Why, no, I suppose not. She was a Puritan."

"Well, mine did. I've heard the governor tell the story. So what's the difference? A few years of time more or less, a generation or so."

She opened her eyes rather wide.

"You seem to have taken on such a sudden weight of accumulated philosophy," she said, "that I hardly recognize you. Where's Jack Wakefield, member of 20 clubs, the great polo player, the howling swell? That sort of fellow doesn't go with such depth as this."

"Can't a man do that sort of thing, and still be a man?"

"Why, of course; but they don't go together as a rule—"

NOW SHE'S MAD.

SIMILAR PREJUDICE.

Mistress—I didn't like the look of that man's face you had in the kitchen last night, Bridget!

Bridget—Just what he said about you, mum!

Genius.

Mrs. Kawser—"How is Johnny getting along as a grocer's clerk?" Mrs. Crossway—"Well enough, I guess. He can tie up a package with a knot that you can't untie to save your life, and yet it'll come untied itself as soon as you get on the train with it."

Mr. Huntem—I'm going to India to hunt for six months.

Miss Catchem—And I suppose you will forget all about poor me.

Mr. Huntem—My dear, it will take a terribly fierce elephant to make me forget you.

INDUSTRY & MECHANICS

LARGEST CHAINS IN WORLD.

Links Which Are Almost as Big as a Man and Weigh More.

The record for size appears to be held by the moorings for the two new Cunard steamships Mauretania and Lusitania, which are being constructed at Pontypool, South Wales. The common links of these mooring-chains, an illustration of which is reproduced from Engineering, are of 4½-inch iron. Says this paper:

Mooring-Chains for the New Cunarders. The Largest Chains in the World.

"These moorings . . . will weigh altogether about 200 tons. Patent Lenox mooring-anchors weighing 12 tons apiece will be used. The four bridle-chains are 720 feet long, and the main chains are made up of square links, each about four feet long and weighing four hundredweight apiece. The swivel connection shown in the figure weighs 4,485 pounds, and each shackle weighs 711 pounds. The links of the buoy-pendant are of 4½-inch iron and weigh 243 pounds apiece, while the end links, weighing each 336 pounds, are of 5½-inch material."

This constitutes the heaviest work ever done in the chainmaking industry. The makers, we are told, supplied the cables for the Great Eastern in 1858.

REPAIR FOR CASTER SOCKETS.

How a Piece of Eight-Inch Pipe Can Be Made to Do Good Service.

When the caster socket in an article of furniture becomes worn or weakened, drill out the socket large enough to receive a piece of one-eighth-inch pipe and after driving the pipe in as far as it will go, cut it off with a hacksaw. If the caster has a large shank it may be necessary to use a one-fourth-inch pipe. A piece of pipe fitted in this way, says Popular Mechanics, makes an excellent bushing and is much more durable than the original socket.

IRON COATED WITH ALUMINUM.

Iron sheets coated with aluminum are very durable and likely to supplant galvanized iron for many purposes.

A Great Marine Engineering Feat

Of all the odd, queer tales of the sea and of those who go down to the sea in ships, there is nothing more remarkable than the marine surgical operation which has been performed successfully on the 12,500-ton White Star steamship Suevic. Caught in the grasp of the treacherous Brandies rocks, off the Lizard Light, at the southernmost extremity of England, the big vessel suffered the amputation of nearly one-third her length forward, then, turning on her metaphorical heel, waved a scornful adieu to the former component part of herself, and started for Southampton under her own steam.

She was not a pretty sight, it must be admitted. Her once graceful prow was still fast on the rocks with a large section of the hull attached. The sea surgeons had patched up the substitute bow to the best of their ability, but it was a shapeless mass of timberic remedy, the sea surgeons began to prepare their huge patient for the operation. Her cargo, consisting principally of rabbits and mutton in cold storage, was thrown overboard.

All being in readiness, several trained nurses in diving suits descended to the hold forward of the bulkhead and with saws and other implements proceeded to cut away as much as they could of the huge timbers and weaken the plates beyond the protecting bulkhead. Other men behind the partition worked with equal energy to brace the walls of the vessel to receive the shock. This labor took the better part of 18 days. Several capsules of dynamite were placed in orifices prepared for them, electrical communication was made and everybody withdrew to the required safety distances. Captain Jones and his men remained aboard the Suevic, sheltered from danger of flying fragments and ready to

She shook her head.

"I cannot marry you," she said.

"You don't love anyone else, do you?"

There was no answer.

"I know what it is," he said. "It's your pride. Never mind! I can wait. Of course, it's embarrassing for you. You don't care anything about the money, of course, but your conscience troubles you about my losing it—naturally. Well, never mind. I'll show you! But now, dear, can't you give me some little word of encouragement?"

A capless maid entered the musty drawing room, holding in her red fingers a card.

"For you, miss," said the maid.

"Very well, Martha. Ask him into the small reception room, as usual."

Then she held out the missive to him.

"I am afraid," she said, "there is no hope for you. You see, I am going to marry this gentleman."

He took in the familiar name in one burning glance.

"The governor!" he exclaimed.

bers and jagged plates, suggesting the front end of a trolley car after a head-on collision. Maine huntsmen delight to tell of instances where bears, foxes or "painters" have gnawed off a leg to escape from a trap; but this is the first really successful case on record where a ship left part of herself in a rocky trap and got to port by her own efforts.

The Suevic, carrying 500 passengers, of whom 150 were children—mostly babies, from Australian ports, was entering the English channel. A dense fog came up, and when near the Lizard Light the vessel, which had been groping her way along, ran on the rocks.

With the first gleam of dawn Captain Jones and his men made an inspection of the vessel. They found the sharp rocks had pierced her bottom as far as the second bulkhead. This bulkhead being closed, the water could not penetrate further; but there was infinite danger of the ship being torn apart by the power of the waves, which were swaying the big vessel to and fro while the rocks held her fast by the nose."

It so happened that a body of sea surgeons were in the vicinity. The members were attached to a Liverpool company which makes a specialty of salvaging wrecks—sort of marine ghoul, as it were, which thrives on the misfortunes of vessels. These sea surgeons went over and inspected the Suevic. They found her heart—that is her engines—were intact, and beyond a few strained plates just aft of the principal seats of injury, there was nothing to prevent the vessel from floating if she was separated from that section held by the rocks.

Having decided in favor of the he-reached forward after the explosion to observe results.

At the signal the head surgeon touched a button. There was a tremendous roar, and a cataract of water shattered timbers, fragments of steel plates and various articles of a ship's equipment shot in the air. The big hulk of the vessel swayed and plunged from the concussion; then, as the water in the vicinity began to subside, it was seen that she was separated from the former part of herself and was several rods away from the rocks.

The men assigned for the purpose rushed forward and clambered down into the hold to see the results. The stout bulkhead had successfully resisted the force of the explosion, thanks to the careful placing of the dynamite. There were cracks here and there through which the water was pouring, but they were easily patched up. The surgeons came aboard, inspected their work and pronounced the operation a complete success. There were congratulations all around and the wine room was in the uninjured part of the vessel.

A few hours more spent in making necessary preparations, and the remaining two-thirds of the Suevic turned her battered nose toward Plymouth. Her own engines were at work, but the surgeons insisted upon an ambulance corps in the shape of a couple of tugs, staying alongside to render assistance if necessary. Before night the Suevic was safe in the dock at Plymouth. Additional repairs were there made and a day or two later the Suevic pulled out, and, having discharged her surgeons and nurses, made for Southampton, where she now lies, waiting for a new nose to be built.

KUROKI WAR GENIUS

Among all the men who gained distinction in the Russo-Japanese war none has attained a higher place in the esteem of his countrymen and in the respect of the soldiers throughout the world than Gen. Baron Itei Kuroki, commander of the Japanese first army, now visiting in this country. Until the appearance of Field Marshal Oyama before Liao Yang Kuroki was in supreme command of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, and even after the arrival of his superior officer, Kuroki remained very much in the lime-light during the remainder of the campaign.

Kuroki it was whose military genius and activity forced the Russians to make the first of those "masterly retreats" that later became so much of a habit with the czar's soldiers that they will go down in history as the principal features of the war. Absolute coolness and military daring of a character such as Kuroki's principal characteristics as a leader.

When the occasion, in his opinion, required it, Kuroki did not hesitate to go against all the established rules of attack and defense.

Military observers on duty with the little Japanese commander commented freely on his wonderful nerve, but from the fact that his apparently foolhardy maneuvers were almost invariably successful they could do nothing but praise him.

The recent war with the czar was not Kuroki's first experience in command of troops, however. As long ago as 1868 he was fighting for the mikado, taking an active part in the struggle that eventually overthrew the Shogun rule and reestablished the power of the emperor. From that time up to the present he has been conspicuous in the affairs of Japan, both in war and in peace. The little general has always stood for progress and expansion, and he was among those whose wise counsels made possible the magnificent condition of the Japanese army and navy at the beginning of the war with Russia.

DEFENDS MINERS' CHIEFS

Clarence S. Darrow, the Chicago attorney who is defending William D. Haywood, the secretary of the Western Miners' Federation, accused of conspiring to murder former Gov. Steenberg of Idaho, is noted for his successes in the cause of workingmen. Darrow began his career as a railroad attorney, but found his real forte lay in legal assaults upon monopolies and great corporations. In the great coal strike of 1903 Darrow made a brilliant appeal for the men before the Roosevelt arbitration committee. The award of ten per cent. increase in wages and $2,500,000 back pay for the miners was a distinct triumph for Darrow.

Darrow's studies of the conditions under which workingmen live and his sympathy with their aspirations have developed marked socialist tendencies. He is a great admirer of Tolstoi and has written a book, "Resist Not Evil," which is admittedly inspired by the Russian philosopher. Darrow calls himself an independent Democrat and is an ardent advocate of public ownership.

A characteristic utterance of Darrow, delivered at the time of the anthracite strike, was:

"The whole system of jurisprudence is a fraud. There is more mummery about a court than about a theater. There are no end of courts. There has to be many of them to correct each other's mistakes. There are some antiquated people who believe it makes a difference whether you are guilty or not. No one was ever more mistaken."

"It is unlawful to get a pistol, even though it has no powder and ball in it, and say to a man you must give me ten cents to buy my dinner or I will blow the top of your head off. But it is lawful to get all of the coal in the world and say we will let you freeze unless you pay us $15 a ton for it. That is not extortion. That is business."

YOUNG CAPTAIN OF INDUSTRY

If you should go into the offices of the Metropolitan Street Railway company in New York city, a corporation controlling several hundred miles of trackage and many hundred cars, and representing an investment of $200,000,000, and should have business calling for the attention of the general manager, you would probably get a surprise when he appeared, unless you knew him. For you would not be ushered into the presence of a graybeard with furrowed face, showing the years of business experience qualifying him for so important a position, but a mere lad—in appearance a college freshman. Tall, raw-boned, keenly alert, he would stand before you and transact his business with a sureness and briskness that would startle.

This is Oren Root, nephew of the secretary of state, and recently made, while scarcely over 30, vice president of this vast corporation.

Young Oren Root is the youngest railroad manager in the world. By sheer ability and hard work, within eight years, he has worked up from a clerkship to be general manager of the Metropolitan Street Railway system. He has 460 miles of road to oversee and 14,000 men to direct. Mr. Root, a Hamilton college graduate, without any sort of technical experience, began as a clerk in the company's offices. Noting his quality, H. H. Vreeland, then general manager of the road, determined to advance him. At his suggestion, Mr. Root worked as a cable-car gripman, then as a motorman, and then as a conductor. Thus he gained an insight into the operation of the roads. Graduating from this high school, Mr. Root became an inspector, starter and general utility man about the barns of the company. After that he was made assistant general manager, and finally general manager. Mr. Root does not even look 29 years old. He is smoothly shaven, has light hair and blue eyes. He has stalwart shoulders and untiring energy. In all the time he has been employed by the Metropolitan system he has been out of New York only seven days, and that was when, at the request of a syndicate, he went to Chicago to examine the street railway system there. Upon his report the syndicate bought control of it in that city.

GIVES MILLION TO CITY

Gen. William Jackson Palmer, who has offered $1,000,000 worth of land to Colorado Springs for park purposes, finds at 70 years of age that he has too much money. He thought the same six years ago, when he sold his interest in the Denver & Rio Grande railroad to the Goulds for $6,000,000. At that time he turned over the princely sum of $1,000,000 for distribution among his former employees on the railroad.

Palmer began life in 1853 in the employ of the Pennsylvania road. He quit to serve

CLASS SOCIAL SESSION.

Young Men's Bible Class of Methodist
Sunday School Entertained by President C. G. Walker.

Friday evening the handsome, commodious and beautifully furnished class room of the Young Men's Bible Class of the Methodist Sunday school was the scene of a highly enjoyable social session, with the popular class president, Mr. C. G. Walker as host. Roses, magnolias, jasmines, daisies, nasturtiums and other cut flowers were vased and rested upon pretty art designs on the polished library table. In one corner was a brimming punch bowl from which fruit punch was served by members of the class. Iced fruits and strawberry and banana cream and cake were the other refreshments.

President Walker, as master of ceremonies, spoke briefly on the work and purposes of the class, and called upon a number of others for short and pointed talks. Responses were made by Dr. I. F. Betts, the pastor; Supts. R. O. Allen and Ed Hall and Secretary W. H. Lawrence, Prof. J. D. Willis, E. J. Jenkins, J. R. Cole, Lamar Bathea, T. C. Nunn, J. E. Wells, Ed Martin, H. O. Smith, W. J. Coulter, E. K. Rowe, Wilson Bradley and Malcolm Carnes.

The talks covered various phases of the widespread new movement for adult Sunday school attendance and work, and indicated that the class has a wide-awake and progressive spirit along this line and is enjoying a splendid growth. There were twenty-eight present, and a rising vote of thanks for the very pleasant and profitable evening was extended to President and to Mrs. Walker and Mrs. I. F. Betts, who supervised the arrangements and the serving of the delightful refreshments.

TORE HER DRESS.

Negro Grabs Little Girl, but She Succeeds in Escaping.

Greenville, Tex., June 7.—Shortly before noon Thursday the thirteen-year-old daughter of J. A. Record, who lives two miles southwest of Campbell, was out in the field looking for a cow. Another little girl was with her. As they passed a clump of bushes a young negro named Nat Turner, about seventeen years of age, jumped out and seized the little Record girl by the collar. She screamed and managed to escape, but had her dress torn in the attempt to extricate herself. She ran, and was chased by the negro until she reached the public road. The negro was caught.

BUYS SLEEPERS.

Texas Central Railroad Company Has So Notified Commission.

Waco, June 7.—The Texas Central Railroad company has given notice to the railroad commission that it has bought its own sleepers, to be delivered July 1, and has applied for authority to adopt a rate of $1.50 for lowers and $1 for uppers between Waco and Rotan, 268 miles.

There is much joy in the commission, according to reports here, and the rates will undoubtedly be approved that they could not secure sleepers, car rates.

The other roads, it is said, asserted that they could not secure sleepers, etc.

No official confirmation could be secured, but it is learned from a reliable source that the road has bought the necessary sleeping car equipment, and that the rate notice has been given the railroad commission.

PYTHIANS MEET.

Supreme Assembly of Uniform Rank In Session at Jamestown.

Norfolk, Va., June 7.—The supreme assembly of the Uniform Rank of Knights of Pythias convened in annual session at the Jamestown exposition Thursday. Two amendments were offered at the opening session, one changing the style of the uniform, bringing it nearer to the standard of the United States army, and another providing for a revision with radical changes in drill regulations. These were referred to proper committees. Both amendments are favored, and will probably pass at this session.

ELEVEN KILLED.

Another Reign of Terror and Violence Prevails at Lodz.

Lodz, June 7.—There has been another reign of terror and violence in this city since June 2. Eleven persons have been killed, including two mill owners, and thirty-seven have been wounded. The workmen have formed a secret vigilance committee which every night executes one or more bandits or terrorists. The corpses are left on the streets and to the lips of the dead men are pinned pieces of paper setting forth the exact reasons for the execution.

Found Dead In Bed.

Terrell, Tex., June 6.—A. P. Crutcher, a bachelor, fifty years old, who resided nine miles south, was found dead in bed.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN.

(Copyrighted 1907, by W. T. Foster.)

Washington, D. C., June 8.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross the continent 9 to 13, warm wave 8 to 12, cool wave 11 to 15. Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 14, cross west of Rockies country by close of 15, great central valleys 16 to 18, eastern states 19. Warm wave will cross west of Rockies about 14, great central valleys 16, eastern states 18. Cool wave will cross west of Rockies about 17, great central valleys 19, eastern states 21.

This disturbance will come during a very cool period in northern states and Canada while temperatures will be ranging above normal in southern states, and following it will come a great hot wave on all parts of the continent and dangerous storms. The cool wave following this disturbance will cause very low temperatures generally and the rise in temperatures following that cool wave will be so extreme as to make it one of the notable weather events of the year.

From about June 17 onward the storm forces will cause great evaporation, resulting in a sudden drying out of the soil, particularly in those corn sections that lie west of the Mississippi. Details of the important weather events that will come with the disturbance due on meridian 90 about 23, will be given in next bulletin.

About and immediately following June 8 very cool weather, but a warm wave will come in by June 11. A little earlier west of meridian 90 and a little later east of that line. But the first half of June will average below normal northwest of a line drawn from Santa Fe by way of St. Joseph, Mo., Burlington, Iowa and Chicago to Quebec; and above normal southwest of that line; but last half of June temperatures will average above normal on all parts of the continent.

The planet Mars, anciently called the god of war, will be a conspicuous object in the heavens for the next thirty days. It may be seen well to the southward about midnight and can be distinguished from the other planets and the stars by its reddish color. That planet is the immediate cause of the remarkable weather that has occurred during the present year and this I can demonstrate beyond a doubt by the weather records of the past hundred years.

Beginning with August 1907 our planetary ship, on which we are sailing around the sun and with the latter through infinite space, will experience unusual disturbances in the way of storms and other extremes of weather; and electric disturbances including earthquakes. Tropical storms will attract attention in October and November.

Dimmitt.

Bryan Eagle:

As I have not written for some time I will try and give you a few items from Dimmitt and Castro county, that might interest some of the many readers of the Eagle.

Dr. Geo. F. Lee and family of Wellborn arrived in Dimmitt on May 30. They are well pleased with the plains country and the people, but just how well pleased I can't tell; I will leave that for them to say when they get home.

The Dr. and I have a trip in view to the Star and Spring Lake ranches this week. We are not after taking him away from you people, but we do want him to see how fine a country we have while he is here, and show him some antelope and coyotes.

We have had good rains of late in some portions of the county, while other localities are still dry. The wheat is cut very short and in fact, some of it won't ever do to cut at all. Crops are all late on account of the late, cold snaps this spring; however, all young crops are looking well, and if the seasons are favorable we have plenty of time to make a bountiful crop yet.

Dimmitt is on a boom. Since Jan. 1, 1907 there has been built in the town one bank, one land office, one confectionary and cold drink stand, lumber on the ground to build a 27-room hotel, preparations being made to put in a lumber yard, a $900.00 addition recently put to the present temporary courthouse. The grading gang is at work on the P. H. S. L. railroad between Hereford and Dimmitt. Town lots and all lands adjacent the town section are advancing rapidly and selling readily.

Hurrah for Dimmitt and Castro county and her enterprising citizens! In addition to all those good things Dimmitt has a good school with two competent teachers and plenty school funds ahead. Great is the Panhandle country!

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn my growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now easily kill the pains and range of this dolorable disease.

In Germany with a Chemist in the City of Dusseldorf—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made.

It is perfectly safe and painless.

Without this last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I uniformly cure all curable cases of this horrid disease.

Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve freely and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water.

And then, when dissolved, the porous wastes free themselves from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever.

There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer with out help.

We sell, and in confidence recommend
